Forecast for Tuesday 09 May 2023

Weather: Mist and fog will linger and be slow to clear after dawn. The morning will brighten up with some bright or sunny spells for most ranges, perhaps remaining cloudy for island peaks like the paps of Jura and Mull hills. A scattering of afternoon showers will develop, these will be quite short lived but Glencoe and the Lochaber ranges see a few group together with cloud gathering too. Showers dying out in the evening with some clear spells developing. Feeling quite warm in any sunny spells in the milder air.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 70% improving to 90%, perhaps patchy low cloud in showers.

Low Cloud and visibility: Early low cloud with scattered amounts above 600m, this will lift and clear early in the morning, with cloud free summits expected for much of the day, perhaps patchy cloud falling below the higher summits in afternoon showers briefly, especially around Ben Nevis. Visibility may be poor in place in mist early in the day and very poor in any early fog patches but expected to improve at all levels in the morning becoming mainly very good with views all around, dipping temporarily in any sharp showers.
